

LOCAL BREVITIES.

City Council meets this evening.

The Phoenix Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular session today.

Bids will be opened today for the construction of the insane asylum sewer.

The lads of the southern portion of the city have dug out a large hole in the ditch near Montgomery's, and rejoice in a fine swimming pond.

The sultry weather of the past few nights has brought out millions of bugs. There are piles of them lying dead about every light, and they are a decided affliction to persons who work at night.

A sheriff's sale of 400 head of cattle, belonging to W. H. Peck, is posted for June 19. The sale is made upon judgment recovered by the Maricopa Loan and Trust Company.

The Fiesta has ended and the city saloons resume their usual appearance of liveliness. For several weeks the larger drinking places have been almost entirely without custom in the evening.

The famous case of Bryan vs. Kales et al. comes up for consideration in the District Court to-day. Goodrich & Street and Edwards appear for plaintiff; Churchill, Baker & Campbell for defendants. It is expected that a neat legal battle will ensue.

TRACTION ENGINES.

Lewis Brothers' New Machine a Gratifying Success.

Lewis Brothers' new thresher moved over from Tempe yesterday, and this morning commences work upon the crops under the Arizona canal north of the city. The traction engine was brought in by train. It did not take five minutes to load the machine on the car at Tempe or to take it off in Phoenix, the engine's own power being used to roll it up and down the skids. It is a peculiar-looking apparatus, two great broad driving wheels being the most imposing parts of the machine. Power is applied to the drive wheels by means of cogs, and the device is completely successful, rough ground and steep grades being no obstacles.

The engine is rated at twenty-five horse power and is suitable for pulling plows, hauling freight wagons or any other purpose where a large number of horses might be used. On the Lewis thresher only six horses are needed, where, without the traction feature of the engine, fully twenty would be required. The outfit steamed through town last evening, the engine with Frank Fowler at the tiller, drawing the separator behind it with ease. It makes but little noise, and caused more excitement among the bystanders than it did among the horses. The traction device is economical and effective and no doubt will be adopted by all local threshermen.
